Moldex highlights new PVC-free safety products at QME

Moldex will highlight its range of worker safety products on Stand 2127 during the 2008 Queensland Mining and Engineering (QME) exhibition at the Mackay Showground from July 22-24.

On display will be the first and only line of hearing and respiratory protection products that are completely PVC-Free. Moldex products have always been 99% PVC-Free, but are now 100% PVC-Free.

Moldex is one of more than 150 major corporations that have taken a stand against the use of PVC plastic in products and/or packaging. Companies like Adidas, Ford, Herman Miller, Perrier and Nike have acknowledged the environmental concerns associated with polyvinyl chloride (PVC) and have pledged to phase it out.

The company has a single focus of worker safety, with more than 25 years' experience in respiratory and hearing protection.

Its products provide comfort and style for wearers and cost savings for employers, with Moldex holding more than 50 patents for its products.

It can also provide solutions that address workers' safety requirements from fit testing to product training to guidance regarding the latest compliance regulations.
